

Physiotherapy Practice Educator Training and Updates 2021-22

The University of Nottingham, Sheffield Hallam University and The University of Lincoln work in collaboration to provide practice/clinical educator training and updates. This means that staff need to attend one course from one university and they can support students from any university.

For those new to clinical education, there are 'full' educator training sessions and for those that are experienced or require an update there are shorter updates. All clinical/practice educators will be updated 2 yearly. You can attend any update; this does not need to be from the university in which you completed your initial training.

Common Placement Assessment Framework (CPAF)

All three of our universities locally will be moving towards using the CPAF over the next 12 months, some have already started that transition and some will start very soon. CPAF training has been incorporated into all of the training sessions below, however, there is also extensive information on the Chartered Society of Physiotherapy (CSP) website which is open access for all. You can find it at the link below;
